NOTES & NEWS

Sunscreen Every Day

Make applying sunscreen a daily habit, just like brushing your teeth. For a visual reminder to put it on every morning, keep your tube or bottle of sunblock next to your tube of toothpaste.

Nap Know-How

According to the National Sleep Foundation, the best time to catch a few quick z's is between 2 and 3 p.m. Take a snooze any earlier, and your body may not be ready for sleep, while drifting off too late in the afternoon may make it difficult to fall asleep at bedtime.

Geocaching Day

The modern hobby of geocaching invites people of all ages to go on high-tech outdoor scavenger hunts. Geocachers use GPS technology to find specific locations that have hidden containers of trinkets and logbooks to sign. The first geocache was placed in 2000, and now millions of treasure seekers take part in the activity year-round. International Geocaching Day is celebrated annually on the third Saturday in August.

Popular Pages: 'The Call of Cthulhu'

Now one of the most famous monsters in literature, horror writer H.P. Lovecraft's creation Cthulhu was introduced in this short story, published in Weird Tales magazine in 1928. In the tale, the narrator finds a sculpture of Cthulhu in his late relative's possessions and begins a quest to uncover the truth about the mysterious beast. Described as a giant, dragon-like creature with the head of an octopus, Cthulhu sleeps at the bottom of the sea, waiting to be released so he can unleash his destructive powers. The monster is often referenced in both the entertainment and scientific communities, and is part of a larger fictional universe called the Cthulhu Mythos, which was expanded upon in later works by Lovecraft and other fantasy writers.

Shine a Light

National Lighthouse Day, Aug. 7, shines the spotlight on the more than 700 beacons on America's shorelines.

Relax With This Easy Yoga Move

Yoga has been shown to help relieve tension, and Legs Up the Wall is an effective pose for beginners to try. Simply lie faceup on the floor, with a pillow or blanket beneath your head and hips, and rest both legs straight up against a wall, feet toward the ceiling. Rest your arms on your stomach or stretch them out at your sides, and breathe slowly and deeply for several minutes. Because the pose is calming and gentle, it's often done at bedtime to promote restful sleep.

At the Beach

The combination of sand and surf creates scenic coastlines across the world. Relax, unwind and find out what makes some beaches fascinating and fantastic.

- Beaches became popular destinations during the 1700s. Doctors often prescribed a visit to the seashore to improve a person's health.
- Most beach sand is tan or white in color, but there are beaches with sand that's black, green, pink, purple and red.
- Brazil is home to the world's longest beach, Casino Beach, which stretches 150 miles long.
- You'll find the "shark tooth capital of the world" at Venice Beach in Florida. Every year, hundreds of fossilized teeth from prehistoric sharks wash ashore there.
- At 58 feet high, the world's tallest sandcastle was built on a German beach in 2019.
- Tides have turned California's Glass Beach from trash to treasure. Its shore is covered with polished pebbles of colorful sea glass, made from garbage tossed into the ocean long ago.
- A day at the beach or the spa? You can have both at New Zealand's Hot Water Beach, where the water underneath the beach heats up to 150 degrees. Beachgoers dig holes in the sand to soak in their own hot tubs.
- It's the wildlife that makes some beaches unique. Sea turtles, penguins, flamingos, monkeys and pigs are just some of the animals that roam the shores along with human visitors.

Exploring the Tropical Fruit Aisle

Grown in warm, lush locations around the world, tropical fruits are famous for their bright colors and refreshingly sweet flavors. While choices such as bananas and pineapples have become common picks, the produce aisle has other exotic offerings to try.

Kiwifruit. With a fuzzy, brown exterior, these small fruits are full of fiber and have more vitamin C than an orange. Their brilliant green interior has a tasty tang that's often compared to strawberries.

Mango. This fruit's thick skin, often a rosy blend of red, yellow and green, is peeled away to reveal tender yellow-orange flesh. Sweet and versatile, mangoes are delightful as a snack or dessert ingredient, but also shine in savory dishes such as salads, stir-fries and salsas.

Papaya. The pear-shaped papaya's soft, orange interior is rich in antioxidants. It's often enjoyed fresh, like melons, or roasted, like squash. Its edible black seeds can be dried and used as peppercorns.

Guava. Varieties of this fruit have green or yellow skin with pink, yellow or white flesh. Guava is entirely edible, from the rind to the seeds, and is featured in jams, candies and thirst-quenching Latin American fruit drinks called aguas frescas.

A Splashy Fashion

With its bright colors and wild patterns, tie-dye is an enduring symbol of the summer season.

Tie-dye is a form of resist dyeing, an age-old technique used by cultures all over the world, from South America to Africa to Asia. The method involves tying or sewing together sections of fabric, so that they will be blocked when dipped into dye. When the fabric is untied, it reveals a pattern, created by the bound sections that "resisted" the dye.

In the U.S., tie-dye first emerged in the 1920s and gained popularity as a thrifty way to design home décor and clothing during the Depression. But the craft really blossomed during the cultural revolution of the 1960s. Since no two hand-dyed garments were alike, wearing tie-dye was a way to express individualism and creativity. The groovy, colorful designs became a symbol of peace and love, and were worn by many performers and fans at Woodstock, the 1969 summer music festival.

An easy and inexpensive seasonal craft project, making a tie-dyed T-shirt is a popular activity for all ages. All you need is a white shirt, rubber bands, a bucket and fabric dye. You can find online instructions for creating a specific design, or simply tie off random sections of the shirt and see what happens!

WIT & WISDOM

Catch Up on 'Clean Beauty'

Natural, nontoxic, pure and clean—those are just some of the buzzwords generated by the growing trend of “clean beauty.” Much like checking the ingredients on food labels, many people are turning that same attention to the products used in their hygiene and beauty routines.

Due to this consumer demand, a growing number of companies are making personal care products that are free of chemicals such as parabens, sulfates and silicones. Store shelves are now full of soaps, toothpastes, shampoos, deodorants and cosmetics with “clean” formulations. Typically, these products have no artificial dyes or fragrances and often have ingredients that come from nature.

There's also a “green” factor, meaning an item is eco-friendly, with minimal packaging that can be recycled or is biodegradable. Some brands offer refillable bottles and jars. Products are also being sold in new configurations, including shampoos in solid bar form and waterless mouthwash in tablets.

Since there's no regulated definition of what a “clean” product is, buyers should look beyond advertising claims and closely check labels. If you'd like to try the trend, look at the health and beauty products you use daily and sample a “clean” version to see if it gives you good results and fits your budget and lifestyle.

Mediterranean Tuna Pasta

Combine pantry staples and a few seasonal fresh vegetables to create a healthy meal that's ready to eat in about 20 minutes.

- 1 can (6 ounces) pitted black olives
- 1 can (5 ounces) chunk light tuna, drained
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- Salt and pepper
- 1/2 cup Parmesan cheese

Cook pasta according to package directions. Set aside.

Warm olive oil on medium heat in large skillet. Add chickpeas, tomatoes, zucchini, olives, tuna, oregano and salt and pepper to taste. Saute, stirring constantly, until zucchini is cooked to desired firmness and rest of ingredients are warmed through.
